KIMBLE AND ELVINA (SMITH) ADAMS
AND
SOME OF THEIR DESCENDANTS

To be a descendant of Kimble and Elvina (Smith) ADAMS, my grandparents,
I have found to be a very rewarding experience.

KIMBLE AND ELVINA (SMITH) ADAMS

Of Kimble's background, I have very little information. It has been family tradition that he was a descendant of the presidential Adams line, but I cannot feel that this is well established. I know that the family Bible records give his birth place as Massachusetts; also I have found in the New York census for 1850 that he was born in New Hampshire as his place of birth. New Hampshire became a state of the Union in 1776 and grandfather Kimble Adams was born Nov. 9, 1777. Many families entered the state from their homelands in Massachusetts and Connecticut and seemed to pass briefly in New Hampshire and then move on westward. This may be an explanation for the above difference in birth place, but it also may have happened because of the way the census taker took the information that he got, or that his handwriting was not definite enough, or that the one who gave him the information did not know. However, in the Iowa census for 1860 I find that his birth place is given as Massachusetts and I feel that this is correct.

RILEY COUNTY, KANSAS
GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

I know that his father's name was William Adams and what name could be more in common usage than that?—and what name could be married but I have not been able to learn the names of either of his wives. I have been told that by the first wife, William had two sons, both names, one named Nathaniel, other not known, and one daughter, named Jennie, who married a Mr. DeCoursey and lived in Montreal, Canada. Kimble was the only son, or else the only child, by the second wife who may have been a Kimble. So much for grandfather Kimble Adams' background. He died April 19, 1879 in Monroe Township, Clayton County, Iowa on his farm there and was buried in the Adams Cemetery.

Kimble married Mrs. Mable E. Adams Evans, 1958 Sherman, his wife, on Dec. 1, 1878, at 610 Fairchild Terrace, Manhattan, Kansas. I never knew grandmother, of course, young at the time that grandmother died to have questioned her about the family. However, she told me that I came from a very patriotic family in whom I could be justly proud.

I know that Elvina's father and mother were David and Triphena (Sherman) Smith and that one day, when David was felling trees, Triphena carried out a cup of water for him—and was caught under a tree that was falling. Elvina was 1817. Elvina's stepmother was a Mrs. Deborah Tarbox, a widow with four children of her own. She loved her stepmother and said there never could be a better mother for her motherless children than her own stepmother.

SOME OF THEIR DESCENDANTS

Of Kimble's background I have been unable to gather much information. It has been family tradition that he was a descendant of the presidential Adams line, but I cannot feel that that will ever be substantiated. I know that the family Bible records give his birth place as Massachusetts; also I have found in the New York census for 1850 that it gives New Hampshire as his place of birth. New Hampshire became a state of the Union in 1788 and grandfather Kimble Adams was born Nov. 9, 1809. Many families entered the state from their homelands in Massachusetts and Connecticut and seemed to pause briefly in New Hampshire and then move on westward. This may be an explanation for the above difference in birth place, but it also may have happened because of the way the census taker took the information that he got, or that his handwriting was not definite enough, or that the one who gave him the information did not know. However, in the Iowa census for 1860 I find that his birth place is given as Massachusetts and I feel that that must be correct.

I know that his father's name was William Adams--and what name could be more in common usage than that?--William was twice married but I have not been able to learn the names of either of his wives. I have been told that by the first wife, William had two sons, both mutes, one named Nathaniel, other not known, and one daughter, named Jennie, who married a Mr. Duclause and lived in Montreal, Canada. Kimble was the only son, or else the only child, by the second wife who may have been a Kimble. So much for grandfather Kimble Adams' background. He died April 10, 1879 in Monona Township, Clayton County, Iowa on his farm there and was buried in the Luana Cemetery.

Kimble married Elvina Smith, daughter of David Smith and Triphena Sherman, his wife, on Dec. 13, 1831 in New York state, possibly Chateaugay. I never knew grandfather, of course, and I was too young at the time that grandmother died to have questioned her about the family. However, she told me that I came from a very patriotic family in whom I could be justly proud.

I know that Elvina's father and mother were David and Triphena (Sherman) Smith and that one day, when David was felling trees, Triphena carried out a cup of water for him--and was caught under a tree that was falling. Elvina was only a baby at the time and Triphena from that time until her death managed her home for her husband and family of five children from her chair and her bed. She never walked again and died in late 1815 or in 1816. David remarried about 1817. Elvina's stepmother was a Mrs. Deborah Tarbox, a widow with four children of her own. Grandmother loved her stepmother and said there never could be a better mother for five motherless children than her own stepmother. David and Deborah had their ready-made family of his five and her four, all about the same ages and then between Feb. 7, 1818 and Aug. 22, 1828 they had their family of six children, all born in Alburg, Grand Isle County, Vermont, or a mysterious place called Henchenbrook, Canada. Another npt to be found location in this Adams line is Jamestown, sometimes called Russelltown, Canada. I feel that these places were really in what is now our United States but that the boundary line had not as yet been definitely located. I do know that at one time Alburg(h), Vermont was named Caldwell Manor, Canada and that was where David's father, Phineas, a pensioner of the War of the Revolution, died in 1846.

Kimble and Elvina were married in New York, Dec. 13, 1831--Elvina aged 16. I believe they were married in or near Chateaugay, New York as Avery, Elvina's oldest brother, and the first born of that family, was born in Chateaugay in 1803. Then in 1834, Sianthe, the second daughter and child of Kimble and Elvina, and in 1842, Asher, the sixth child and third son were born in Burke, Franklin County, New York. Since Burke was erected from Chateaugay in 1844, the family probably used the new name for the birth place of these two children. My father, Asher Adams, always claimed his birth place as Burke, Franklin County, New York, but as he was born in 1842 he was really born in Chateaugay. So I think that the family spent considerable time in Chateaugay and a place "across the river" called Jamestown, Canada where four of this family of thirteen children were born. It was a river which froze solid in the winters and travel between Canada and the United States was made over the ice. Canada can give me no help in finding so-called Jamestown, Canada.

Kimble and Elvina (Smith) Adams removed from New York to Illinois about 1853 and spent about one year there with Elvina's brother James. From Illinois they removed to Clayton County, Iowa prior to 1856 and where Kimble died on his farm in Monona township, between Luana and Postville, Iowa Apr. 10, 1879.

In 1880, Elvina with son James, removed to Osage County, Kansas where her son, my father, Asher, with his wife and baby daughter Lillian May, had settled in 1872. Elvina and James eventually owned and lived on a farm south and a little west about nine miles from Osage City, Kansas in a neighborhood called Arvonla, a Welsh settlement. Elvina died on the farm May 26, 1900 and was buried on the Adams lot in the Osage City Cemetery.

Asher Adams was a grain dealer in Luana, Iowa at the time of his marriage to Sarah E. Thompson in 1870. Sarah was the second child, second daughter of Stephen Hurd Thompson and his wife, Elizabeth Rogers Bowles. The Thompson farm was about one mile south of the little town of Luana, where the family was very active in the Congregational Church, Stephen being chorister and singing school leader there for many years. Stephen died on the farm in 1879. In Kansas, Asher was first a farmer living on a farm just a few miles south of the city of Osage and where the little son, Frederick, was born and died. Soon he moved his family into Osage City and again became a grain merchant, building the first grain elevator there about the year 1873 or 1874 and continued in the business until his death Mar. 14, 1919. He was buried in the Osage City Cemetery. The elevator and the feed store belonging to him at the time of his death were sold by my mother in 1920 and the elevator burned down about 1925. .

Kimble Adams was a farmer and a member of the Methodist Church in which faith he brought up his whole family. In some respects he was stern and strict, but always in love with Elvina to whom he did not show his sterner side. Elvina endeared herself to all of her children and her grand children and was a most careful and industrious home maker of wonderful character. My mother told me that no woman had ever had as wonderful a mother-in-law as she did. Elvina and Kimble saw all three of their sons enlist and take active part in the Union army in the Civil War. Willard and James were in Iowa State Infantry while Asher was a member of the 4th Iowa Cavalry. Several of the children were teachers at one time or another and not long before her death, grandmother asked me to promise that I would go to college when the time came. Thanks to my father and mother, I was able to keep that promise.

The Kimble and Elvina (Smith) Adams family were in Jamestown, Canada, the birth place of four of the older children. (I find it also called Russelltown, Canada in the obituary of the son Willard, and Hennenbrook, Canada in a birth account.) They were in Chateaugay, New York in 1834; back in Jamestown, Canada 1835 to 1842; were in Chateaugay, New York (later named Burke) in 1842 at the time of my father's birth and were in Burke 1845 to 1851; were in Illinois, near Algonquin, 1853 to 1854 then in Iowa from 1854 to 1880.

and sons Samuel aged 9 years and Philip aged one year and daughters Elizabeth aged seven years and Mary aged four sailed on Apr. 30, 1634 for New England in the ship "Elizabeth" of Ipswich and landed in Boston.
He and his wife were then called 32 years of age. He settled first at Salem and was admitted a free man Sept. 3, 1634. He was a proprietor there in 1638. He removed to Wethersfield, Conn. ca. 1635 and lived there up to 1661 when he went up the river to Hadley, Mass. where he was an original settler May 22, 1659. The town was co-existent with the church and he held important offices in both, having helped to organize the church.

He was a "fellmonger", a dealer in hides, so was probably a tanner.

He probably gained his title of Lieutenant by holding that rank in the militia organized for the defense of the settlers against the Indians. He was Lieutenant of militia from 1663 to 1667.

He died in 1680 aged 78 and the inventory of his estate was taken
Jan. 17, 1681, amount of which was a little more than 700 pounds.
